DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hong et al. (US 6,674,495, hereinafter, Hong.)

In regard to claims 1, 2, in fig.24, Hong discloses a thin film phototransistor, comprising:

- a gate electrode 56;
- a gate insulation film 60 provided on the gate electrode;
- a photosensitive semiconductor film 70 laminated on the gate insulation film ;
- a source electrode 111 provided on the photosensitive semiconductor film; and
- a drain electrode 113 provided on the photosensitive semiconductor film, the source electrode and an drain electrode being separated with a predetermined distance, the source electrode and/or the drain electrode including a superimposition area for being horizontally superimposed on the gate electrode, and the superimposition area including at least one portion having translucency, ITO, for example.

In regard to claims 3, 4, wherein the transparent conductive film is a transparent conductive oxide film, ITO.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 5-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hong as applied to claims 1-4 above, and further in view of Kobayashi et al. (US 6,600,160, hereinafter, Kobayashi.)

5. In regard to claims 5 and 6, Hong discloses all of the claimed limitations. Hong also further teaches electrical patterns which are commonly formed in LCD devices. The use of switching is also widely used as a selector. In order to clear show this obviousness, Kobayashi is incorporated herein. For example, in several figures (1-4), Kobayashi discloses an analogous TFT device including a detailed circuit. The device further includes switching and a photosensor 21 as selection-switch in order to perform the selection of the input signals.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to recognize the common circuits in LCDs in order to take the advantage of what being established.

Kobayashi further includes a capacitor in the circuit, fig. 4.

In regard to claim 11, see the discussion above regarding to claim 3.

In regard to claims 12-13, see Kobayashi's fig. 4.
